Highlights

June 8th and 9th, Trumbull Neighborhood Partnership (TNP), the Trumbull County Land Bank, and the Fine Arts Council of Trumbull County (FACT) hosted a public art exhibition, Occupied Warren, modeled in the spirit of the highly successful Rooms to Let: CLE in Slavic Village. The Event was funded through an Ohio Arts Council grant, awarded to TNP.

Occupied Warren created a temporary exhibition in a vacant, blighted home located in Warren’s Garden District that included works of art created, installed, developed, revealed, or performed by local artists exploring themes of blight, abandonment, vacancy, and the revitalization process the city is undergoing. Artists were encouraged to use salvaged or found materials and the abandoned home itself as part of their submissions. Throughout the two-day exhibit there were nearly 1,000 attendees who were able to tour the vacant home and explore the art work of local artists that were challenges to bring awareness and start a deeper conversation about the journey from blight to revitalization in Warren and other legacy cities like it left in the wake of decades of disinvestment and economic displacement.
